Conference Background

We live in an age marked by the drive to provide equal opportunities for acquiring knowledge and abilities necessary for participation in the society of today. The European Union stands for the preservation of national, regional, cultural and language diversity but also for sovereignty in educational policy of every member state. In the path towards the European Union, Bosnia and Herzegovina is involved in the processes which include the development and improvement of the educational system in order to meet the highest standards in providing quality education for all.

Motivated by further improvement of science and research in accordance with the latest scientific achievements, the Faculty of Philosophy and the University of Zenica organize the Eleventh International Conference entitled SCIENCE AND THE CONTEMPORARY.

This gathering of scientists and professionals will provide an opportunity to present and exchange the latest achievements and experiences in different fields of education. Therefore, the conference will contribute to the presentation of new scientific knowledge and results.
